

02 - UI/UX, Copy & Visual System

A premium therapy redesign that remains faithful to the required template structure

GROW MY THERAPY - STAGE 2 SELECTION ASSIGNMENT

1. Design principle

The redesign should feel calm, credible, warm and editorial rather than “techy.” This is a mental-health website for high-functioning adults experiencing anxiety, trauma or burnout. The visual system should lower cognitive load, create breathing room, and make the therapist feel trustworthy without becoming sterile or clinical.

2. Design system

Category	Specification
Color	Deep eucalyptus primary, warm oat secondary, muted terracotta accent, warm ivory surface, charcoal text.
Spacing	Use a strict 4/8px scale. Typical section padding: 88-120px desktop, 64-80px tablet, 48-64px mobile.
Content width	Editorial max width around 1180-1240px; long-form copy narrower (640-760px).
Cards	Subtle borders, generous padding, restrained radius. Avoid SaaS-style glassmorphism.
Buttons	Primary filled accent/dark button; secondary text/outline button. Minimum 44px target height.
Images	Warm natural light, authentic adult environments, quiet interiors, grounded textures. Avoid obvious “sad person holding head” stock imagery.
Motion	Only subtle entrance/hover transitions; respect prefers-reduced-motion. Never animate every section.
Accessibility	WCAG AA contrast, keyboard navigation, focus-visible states, semantic headings, reduced-motion support.

3. Homepage copy deck - profile grounded

Hero

IN-PERSON THERAPY IN SANTA MONICA + SECURE TELEHEALTH ACROSS CALIFORNIA

Anxiety & Trauma Therapy in Santa Monica for Adults Ready to Feel Grounded Again

When life looks functional from the outside but feels exhausting underneath, therapy can offer a place to slow down, understand what is happening, and build steadier ways of moving through work, relationships, and daily life.

Primary CTA: Explore Therapy Options Secondary CTA: Meet Dr. Maya

Empathy section

You may be keeping up with work, responsibilities, and relationships while internally feeling tense, overwhelmed, or stuck in overthinking. You might be sleeping poorly, bracing for the next problem, or noticing that earlier experiences still shape how safe and confident you feel today. Therapy can make room to understand those patterns without asking you to push harder.

Services

Heading	Copy
Anxiety & Panic Therapy	Support for constant worry, overthinking, body tension, sleep disruption, panic, and the feeling that your nervous system is always on alert. Sessions can combine practical CBT tools, mindfulness, and body-oriented awareness.
Trauma & EMDR Therapy	Carefully paced trauma work for single events or longer-standing experiences connected to childhood, relationships, or chronic stress. The focus begins with safety, stabilization, and greater day-to-day regulation.
Burnout & Perfectionism Therapy	A space for professionals, entrepreneurs, and creatives who have spent years pushing through pressure and now feel exhausted or disconnected from themselves. Therapy can help you slow down and develop more sustainable ways of living and working.

How therapy works with Maya

Dr. Maya Reynolds takes a warm, collaborative, and grounded approach. Sessions have enough structure to feel supportive while still leaving room for reflection and depth. Depending on your needs, she integrates cognitive-behavioral therapy (CBT), EMDR, mindfulness-based practices, and body-oriented techniques to address both the emotional and physiological sides of stress and trauma.

About

Dr. Maya Reynolds, PsyD is a licensed clinical psychologist based in Santa Monica, California. She works with adults navigating anxiety, panic, trauma, burnout, perfectionism, and the effects of chronic stress. Her goal is not only short-term symptom relief, but helping clients develop insight, resilience, and a stronger relationship with themselves over time.

Our Office - custom section

A Calm Space for Therapy in Santa Monica

In-person sessions are offered from Dr. Maya Reynolds' Santa Monica office at 123th Street 45 W, Santa Monica, CA 90401. The office is quiet and private, with natural light and a comfortable, uncluttered environment designed to feel calm and grounding. Secure telehealth is also available for clients located in California.

Use the two office photographs supplied in the profile as the primary visuals in this section. Keep their crop natural and avoid heavy color filters that would make the office look different from the source material.

4. FAQ copy - do not invent unsupported details

Question	Profile-supported answer direction
Who do you work with?	Adults, often high-achieving, thoughtful and self-aware, who are dealing with anxiety, panic, trauma, burnout, perfectionism or chronic stress.
What approaches do you use?	CBT, EMDR, mindfulness-based practices and body-oriented techniques, selected according to the client's needs.
Do you offer trauma therapy?	Yes. Explain that Maya works with single-incident and more complex/long-standing trauma, with careful pacing, safety and stabilization.
Do you offer in-person and online therapy?	Yes. In-person in Santa Monica; secure telehealth for clients located in California.
What is your therapy style?	Warm, collaborative and grounded, with supportive structure plus space for reflection and depth.
What is your office like?	Quiet, private, naturally lit, comfortable and uncluttered. Do not add amenities not shown or stated.

COPY SAFETY Do not add fees, insurance plans, phone number, email, free consultations, session length, cancellation policy, exact availability, diagnosis claims, or guaranteed outcomes because the supplied Maya profile does not provide them.

5. Image direction by section

Section	Image brief
Hero	Single adult or calm Santa Monica-adjacent lifestyle image with warm natural light; spacious composition; no cliché crisis pose.

Empathy	Quiet interior, walking, journaling or reflective adult scene; visually calm and mature.
Anxiety	Subtle body/grounding visual rather than obvious distress.
Trauma / EMDR	Grounded, safe, neutral imagery; avoid visuals that sensationalize trauma.
Burnout	Professional/creative adult in a quiet reset moment; not laptop-heavy startup imagery.
About	Use the supplied Maya portrait.
Office	Use supplied office images from the profile.
Final CTA	Abstract texture, window light, coastal California calm, or minimal environment that fits the palette.

6. Responsive behavior

- Desktop: preserve asymmetry and editorial whitespace from the original reference.
- Tablet: collapse complex side-by-side content into two-column or stacked blocks while retaining image hierarchy.
- Mobile: one-column reading flow, no tiny text, CTA buttons full/near-full width, images with intentional aspect ratios, mobile nav with focus trap if modal/drawer based.
- FAQ: use native details/summary or a lightweight accessible accordion. Do not ship a heavy component library only for one accordion.
- Keep line length around 55-75 characters for long-form body copy.

7. SEO implementation

- One clear H1 containing primary service intent + Santa Monica.
- Use H2s such as “Anxiety & Panic Therapy,” “Trauma & EMDR Therapy,” “Burnout & Perfectionism Therapy,” and “Therapy Office in Santa Monica.”
- Metadata title example: “Anxiety & Trauma Therapy in Santa Monica | Dr. Maya Reynolds, PsyD”.
- Description should mention adults, anxiety/trauma/burnout, Santa Monica, and telehealth in California naturally.
- Add descriptive alt text where an image conveys content; do not stuff keywords into alt text.
- Because Maya is fictional, set robots to noindex in the deployed assignment. This demonstrates responsible publishing while leaving the on-page SEO implementation visible to evaluators.